That the rook is a very kind mate
Is renowned.
He'll dig early and he will dig late
All around.
For to fetch tasty food
That will do his wife good
And she eats it without fork or plate.
Off the ground.

The gazelle is lean, lovely and shy.
Also fleet;
With a deep, round, brown lustrous
eye,
Soft and sweet;
Over hill and through dale
He goes, swift as a gale;
And you couldn't catch him, though you try.

How Robert Helped Happy.

"GOODBY, Robert," said Mrs. Sherman as she handed her son his lunch for school. "Goodbye, mother," answered Robert. He was whistling as he went along. Suddenly he heard a tiny whine. He looked across the street. Some boys were tying a can to a dog's tail. The poor little thing was whining, for the boys were none too kind. When Robert saw them his eyes flashed. Flushing across the street, he grabbed the dog.

"What do you mean," he cried, "to tie a can to this dog's tail?" "None of your business," growled the boys. "He's our dog." "I'm going to take him with me. You don't deserve to have him." How happy the dog was to run away from the mean boys. All the morning he was with Robert at school. At recess the children petted him. The dog, now "Happy," had at last found a happy home.

Very large it would be; large enough for all the hundred and ten thousand Cousins each to have a slice! It would have to be just the kind we like best, with strawberry jam between the layers. Then we WOULD have a feast.

A new Cousin, who has taken the cure to come all the way down to the Kiddie Klub office with his coupons to be certain that they got here, has been looking over my shoulder while I write this letter to you.

"It should have only four candles," he has just said, "a candle for each year."

Well, maybe he is right. Those Cousins who are celebrating the Klub's birthday in their own little circle or branch may do as they please, but if I were doing it there would be a candle, not for each year, but for each birthday, and that would make five. There would be one for the very first birthday when the Klub was hardly a minute old. The first is by far the most important birthday, because without it there could be no others; then there would be one for the second birthday, when it was a year old, and another for the third, when our cousinship had grown to the hoary age of two years, and so on.

But since we cannot have this beautiful, enormously large cake I am glad that so many of the Kiddie Klub Branches are having their own birthday party and fun. I hope they enjoy it thoroughly and that they don't get their tummies too awfully spoiled.

With love and best birthday wishes,
COUSIN ELEANOR.

JACK'S GARDEN.
M. R. WORTH gave his son Jack 25 cents to buy seeds for his garden. The seeds were 5 cents a package, so Jack got five packages, one each of beans, radishes, lettuce, peas and beets. Every night when he came home from school he started to work. By the end of the week he had his garden planted.

About the middle of June his garden showed signs of coming up. He weeded it and loosened the soil so that the little plants could grow. And at the end of July everything was up and ready to harvest. No Jack went to the grocer and got some boxes, which he covered with oilcloth. He then put his vegetables on it and painted a neat sign, giving the prices: the beans, 10 cents a quart; the peas, 25 cents a quart, and the radishes, lettuce and beets, 9, 12 and 7 cents a bunch. He sold everything in a very short time and his sales, when added together, amounted to $3.28. His father put it in the bank for him and he received a bank book and felt very rich indeed.

The RAINBOW WHITE SALE---Monday

Offers at Low Prices

Paris Blouses

Special at $9.75

First showing of these exquisitely dainty blouses. We received them a week ago and have saved them for this sale.

Six models, all hand-made, of fine batiste or voile, all unusually fresh and pretty.

Rainbow Shades

Mauve, Nile green, canary, rose and French blue. Illustrated is a bewitching slip-over blouse made in a wide range of colors; it has white organdie collar and cuffs, trimmed with hand drawn work.

Other models have finely pleated ruffles, hand embroidery or drawn work.

Silk Lingerie at $3.85

Satin or crepe de chine, chemises and bodices have built up shoulder or bodice tops, ribbon or self straps. All unusually good values.

Rare Corset values

$3.95. Fine batiste corset, made for the slender figure.
$7.45. White coutil is used for this corset designed for the average and heavy figure.

Brassieres and Bandeaux, $1

Large assortment of styles, made of poplin, heavy batiste and imitation lace.

Petticoats at $3.95

Fine saten, tussah, tub silk. Tailored and ruffled models, some scalloped.
It is truly remarkable to find tub silk petticoats at this price. And they launder extremely well.

Lovely white Frocks, $9.75

Dotted swiss and dimity are the materials—both fine and dainty.

The latter is made with vest and long-Tuxedo collar of organdie, the former with round neck and quaint tab-like collar of organdie.

Both have sashes.

Crepe meteor Negligees, $17.85

Exceptionally good value.
Soft, glowing, seductive in texture.

Simple and graceful, yet original in design.

Fine quality heavy crepe meteor in beautiful shades.

Slip-on styles; V neck, long lines, single fastening in front. Long sailor collar, hanging to waist, is of Georgette crepe.

Third floor, Old Building

Exquisite Wraps $125 to $375

For Spring and Summer afternoon and evening wear. Answering the needs of many types of wardrobes.

The wraps the smart woman prefers for afternoon and street wear are of exquisitely soft silk duvetyn in shades of cocoa brown and tan—and the always correct midnight blue. Made in modes that are frankly capes, which use bands of self material as trimming, or are beautifully embroidered with metallic or matching silk thread. Or cape wraps with great enveloping collars or deep yokes that extend almost to the waistline.

For evening—wraps of the finest of soft tulle, in delicate high colors, and in deeper colors for the more mature woman or the woman to whom the darker shades are more becoming.

These tulle wraps are embroidered with fine metallic thread and in delicate color. Some of them are combined Georgette crepe, in contrasting or harmonizing color, banded with squirrel or some other fine and light fur suitable for summer. In pastel green, blue, maize color, and other shades.

Second floor, Old Building

Beautiful Flouncings

One line of Chantilly lace flouncing, in particular, lends itself to the making of the most charming of Summer frocks. It is 36 inches wide, in an all-over pattern with wide lace work. In white and cream, a beautiful lacey quality. Suitable also for negligees. $2.75 a yard.

Another quality of Chantilly, same width, $3.50 yard.

Net flouncing in white and cream, 18 to 40 inches, embroidered on fine cotton net; some have scalloped edging, some all-over effect; some beautiful filet insertion designs. $1.75 to $3.95 yard.

Main floor, Old Building

THE DOWN-STAIRS STORE

Couch Beds and Hammocks

Begins a new season

Bungalows need them; cottages need them; sleeping porches need them; homes need them; and small apartments—surely need couch beds that are comfortable and useful, but not bulky.

So Today

—this good news tells you of some very desirable kinds that are now ready in the Down-Stairs Store; and they are the kinds that you can depend upon for service.

At $13.75

This is called the "Victory" couch bed; it folds in the center like a jack knife, and can be placed in a very small closet. Enameled frame, good springs, good mattress; 2 feet, 6 inches in size.

At $33.75

This is called the "Mas-cot" couch bed. It is a full size bed or a comfortable couch, with ample storage space for bedding. Opened with ease—one hand does it. Romelink springs, box-edge mattress.

At $32

This is called the "Defiance" couch bed. The spring is Romelink fabric; the mattress a roll edge style, closely tufted. It opens into a comfortable double bed.

Couch Hammocks

The comfortable, roomy couch hammock has taken the place of the old fashioned hammock; and now that summer days are coming, there is a wise suggestion in today's information.

At $31.75

An excellent couch hammock with metal frame, adjustable head-rest, and stripe duck covering. The mattress has roll edge, felt top, and is button tufted. A strong, durable hammock.

At $32.75

This couch hammock is virtually the same as described above, except that the upholstery is cotton duck in plain gray. A very slightly hammock.

At $27

This hammock has metal bottom and back frame; and upholstered back in khaki or French gray duck. The mattress has felt top, roll edge, and button tufting.

At $12.50

This low-price hammock is 28x72 inches. It is covered with denim, and has adjustable windshield, magazine pockets, and felt top mattress.

Stands for all types of couch hammocks are $7 and $9.
